

As the climate changes, and our forests are affected, the need to reclaim impacted areas and restore native species becomes more important than ever. The U.S Forest Service's Monongahela National Forest is at the forefront of not only forests restoration, but also helping those landscapes adapt to climate change.

Read more..